Boston Advertiser And Record Buried Out.

Newspaper Men Meet Their Death By Suffocation.

Compositors Hurt By Jumping Down From A Fire Escape.

Boston, March 15.—Three lives were sacrificed, nearly a dozen men were more or less injured and many thousands of dollars' worth of damage was done by a fierce fire that broke out in the press room of the Advertiser seven-story building, with granite front, on Newspaper row, at nine o'clock this evening. The dead are James Richardson, Senior, of 59 Fowler street, proofreader; Judson Craft, of Cambridge, proofreader; and Walter Luscomb, of Salem. All three were suffocated by smoke in the composing room and were unable to escape. Four firemen were cut or bruised and five or six compositors were hurt by jumping from the bottom of a fire escape to an adjoining roof, ten or twelve feet. How the fire started is unknown. It worked its way up through the elevator well to the top of the building. The two upper floors, occupied by the editorial and composing rooms, were completely burned out. Ten linotype machines were practically ruined. The Morning Advertiser will be issued from the Globe office tomorrow morning and the Evening Record from the Journal. Each will be of four pages. All the newspaper proprietors of Boston promptly tendered the courtesies of their establishments. Managing Editor Barrett of the Advertiser estimates his own loss at about $100,000, with $25,000 to other tenants and $25,000 on the building. The building was owned by the Massachusetts Real Estate Trust. The Union Loan and Trust Co., Mason and Proctor, lawyers, and L. J. Kent, broker, were tenants.

"Great Oaks From Little Acorns Grow."

A single microbe contains the germ of the most malignant maladies. The blood is the means by which microbes are sent on their deadly mission. Small at first, the microbe soon becomes a giant. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the arch enemy of all germs of whatever nature. Its small doses master these microbes by dissolving and passing them off as refuse of the system.

HE IS A MADMAN.

A Sensational Story About De Wet.

Some Prisoners That He Has Released Tell It.

Fatigue, Anxiety And Intense Feeling Unhinged His Mind.

BLOEMFONTEIN, March 15.—Prisoners recently released by De Wet believe that he is a madman. They aver that the terrible fatigues which he has undergone, his anxiety and intensity of feeling have unhinged his mind. Apart from some of his peculiarities, it is remarked that he rarely sleeps within the confines of his camp. He sleeps outside with a few of his most trusted followers. His secrecy is extreme. Absolutely none of his plans are imparted to anybody. De Wet repudiates the peace negotiations now going on. He has declared openly to his men that nothing but independence will be satisfactory to him. A recent alleged utterance of his is that after the British, he hates the Transvaalers. The whereabouts of De Wet during the past two or three days are unknown, or whether Steyn is still with him.

PIANO RECITAL.

Miss Green's Pupils Are Heard In Finely Rendered Selections.

The pupils of Miss Mignon B. Green, assisted by Ralph S. Parker, tenor, and Master Harry Dutton, violinist, delighted a large audience of culture in Conservatory hall on Friday evening. The recital reflected shining credit on Miss Green and those who have become so proficient under her instruction.

Each and every number on the programme revealed promising talent in the young artists. So, also, was the skillful direction of the teacher manifested at all times.

Mr. Parker was in good voice and pleased, as usual. Master Dutton's handling of the violin was a charming feature of the evening. The programme was as follows:

1. Pianoforte Duet, "Second Valse," Godard. Misses Remick and Dixon.
2. Piano Solo, "a. 'Dream of Spring,' b. 'Valse,' c. 'Valse,' d. 'Valse,' e. 'Valse,' f. 'Valse,' g. 'Valse,' h. 'Valse,' i. 'Valse,' j. 'Valse,' k. 'Valse,' l. 'Valse,' m. 'Valse,' n. 'Valse,' o. MUSICAL SERVICE.

The Holy City, a sacred cantata by Alfred R. Gaul, will be sung at the North church tomorrow evening by a large chorus choir. All persons interested are invited to attend.

GREAT POOL PLAYING.

Clearwater and Stofft Are Seen to Great Advantage Here.

The crowd that gathered at Mow and Robbins' pool rooms on Friday evening were treated to some remarkable playing by Clearwater, former champion of the world, and Stofft, the western champion, both of whom took part in the recent tourney in Boston. They were on the way to Biddeford and stopped off here to see Mr. Mow, with whom both are well acquainted. He induced them to devote several hours to showing how the game should be played.

Clearwater defeated De Oro in Boston a few nights ago, 150 to 84, while Stofft took third prize in the tourney. Stofft was victor over his companion on Friday evening, by the score of 150 to 87. It was a fine game, but the trick and fancy shots following it brought out the superb skill of the two players at its extreme. Clearwater's finger work was wonderful. He set a ball spinning on the rail and it didn't stop for four minutes. He sent the fifteen ball down the whole length of the table with a twist, in rapid succession, so that each stopped dead just before touching the cushion at the lower end. Stofft was at his very best in the trick shots which he made.

The pair appear in Portland this (Saturday) evening and before the Derryfield club in Manchester on Monday evening. They are to be back in Boston again next fall and desire to visit this city again then. Mr. Mow will probably secure them for a second date.

TO HELP BOULEVARD.

Committee On Appropriations Recommends $30,000 For The Ocean Road.

The state legislative committee on appropriations has evidently become convinced that the new ocean boulevard from New Castle to the Massachusetts state line is really a good thing, for on Friday it reported a recommendation that $30,000 be appropriated toward the project. This will further the construction decidedly and is good news to the boulevard's many champions in this section.

ASSAULTED HIS WIFE.

Dennis Grady, living at the Creek, was arrested by Marshal Eastwistle and Officer Quinn about half past seven o'clock on Friday evening, for assaulting his wife. He drove her out of doors and otherwise ill treated her. They have four very small children. Grady was marked for trial this (Saturday) morning.

HOPE FOR CANAL TREATY.

But No Result Yet From Conferences in Washington.
Washington, March 15.—The presence of the Nicaraguan and Costa Rican ministers and the British ambassador at the state department yesterday gave rise to the belief that the Nicaragua canal question was receiving further consideration. Several members of the senate committee on foreign relations also called on Secretary Hay, and one of them afterward said he was hopeful that another treaty would be made. The conferences have not, however, developed any exact line of action thus far.
Senators Corea and Calvo, the Nicaraguan and Costa Rican ministers, say it is too early yet to judge the effect of the recent action of Great Britain and map out a future course of procedure. Senator Corea says the protocol with Nicaragua did not necessarily expire with the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, as the first articles in the protocol referred to the conclusion of arrangements between the United States and Nicaragua, and this was not affected by the clause referring to the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. Both ministers expressed the belief that the check to the canal project was only temporary.

BOER INVADERS GO NORTH.

Kritzing's Commando Eludes Pursuing Columns.
London, March 15.—Kritzing's commando is working northward and has eluded three British columns. It passed Adelaide, Cape Colony, on both sides of the town without attacking. Kritzing's men have carried off all the horses in the Albany district, for which, as they were registered, Great Britain will have to pay £10,000. The raiders were civil to the inhabitants of the district, though they commandeered horses and food. They did not indulge in the wanton destruction of property, and in many cases offered cash for the food they obtained.
Owing to the increasing gravity of the outbreak of bullock plague in Cape Colony the authorities purpose continuing the soldiers to camps and barracks. The number of European cases is increasing, four having been officially reported yesterday. In addition to these there were eight colored cases reported. Thus far there have been 37 deaths all told. Wholesale inoculation has been begun in Cape Town, and 2,000 natives have been treated. The plague has made its appearance at Malmesbury, Cape Colony.

HARRISON'S FUNERAL.

A Big Military Demonstration Tomorrow.
Indianapolis, March 15.—The arrangements for the funeral of General Benjamin Harrison, ex-president of the United States, have been completed. The body will lie in state at the capitol tomorrow from 11 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock in the evening, and the funeral services will be held from the First Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Rev. M. L. Haines officiating.
The event will not only be one of national significance, but of international importance. Cadregans are reaching all parts of the world offering condolences in the hour of bereavement.
The funeral will be attended by many of the noted men of the United States. President McKinley and members of his cabinet will be here. Governor Yates of Illinois has telegraphed that he will be here, attended by his staff. Governor Nash of Ohio, with his staff, will attend the funeral. Governor Durbin has sent a notice of General Harrison's death to the governors of many of the states, and it is the belief that the majority of them will be here.
All the members of General Harrison's cabinet have been heard from with the exception of Redfield Proctor, who is now in Cuba. Telegrams have been received from Benjamin F. Tracy, ex-secretary of the navy; Charles Foster, ex-secretary of the treasury; John W. Noble, ex-secretary of the interior; John W. Foster, ex-secretary of state, and John W. Thompson, former postmaster general. Telegrams have also been received from Justices McKenna and Harlan of the supreme court, Joseph H. Mendenhall of the W. Palmer of Detroit and W. R. McKim of New York.
Mrs. Harrison has received a telegram from President McKinley as follows:
"In the death of General Harrison our country has lost a distinguished statesman, a devoted patriot and an exemplary citizen. The people of the nation mourn with you. You leave the

CASTELLANE TO FIGHT.
Accepts De Rodays' Challenge to a Duel.

THE SECONDS WILL MEET TODAY.

Husband of Anna Gould Attacks Editor of Figaro For Insultation That Castellane Exposed Royalist Plot of 1899—Story of Their Old Quarrels.

Paris, March 15.—M. de Rodays, editor of the Figaro, has in consequence of the assault made upon him yesterday morning by Count Boni de Castellane, decided to challenge the latter to a duel. M. de Rodays has selected as his seconds M. Prestat and M. Perivier.

Both these gentlemen are connected with the Figaro, M. Prestat being a member of the board of directors and M. Perivier being associated with M. de Rodays in the general management. M. de Rodays' seconds have called at the residence of M. de Castellane. The representatives of the count are not yet publicly known, but it is understood that the four seconds will meet today to make arrangements for the duel.

The quarrel between M. de Rodays and the Count de Castellane is of long standing. The men have insulted each other with great frequency and virulence, but up to this time they have not come to the point of fighting. The article in the Figaro which caused the count's assault on De Rodays accused Castellane of betraying to the French government M. Paul Deschamps's conspiracy to cause a monarchist uprising at the funeral of the late President Faure.

When Count and Countess Boni de Castellane landed in New York on Jan. 22, 1900, the count was met by reporters who questioned him regarding articles which had appeared in the Figaro of Paris while the count was on his way here, alleging that he had been posted on the bourse and had so displaced his own and his wife's finances by gambling that he was compelled to go to the members of the Gould family for aid.

Called Him Names.
The count denounced in unmeasured terms M. de Rodays, editor of the Figaro, saying, with threatening gestures:

"He is a cur, a thief and a liar. I cannot find speech to say all I could wish. I cannot fight a duel with him, for he is far beneath my rank. Besides, he is a coward. He cannot fight. He dare not fight. But I shall reserve the right to seek him out and slap his face upon my return to Paris. He would not accept a challenge. He is a man whom any one may call a liar, a scoundrel, a thief, anything you choose, and he would say nothing. The only way to deal with him is to take a good stout cane, as I shall do, and slap his face. I have prepared this telegram that I will send to him."

Count Boni then showed the reporters the following dispatch to De Rodays:
"There has been communicated to me on board the ship the calumny printed in the Parisian papers emanating from the Figaro. You will at once print a formal denial. I reserve the right on my return to tell you what I think of your dishonesty."

De Rodays's Reply.
M. de Rodays replied as follows to Count Boni de Castellane:

"Your denials and your menaces will change none of the facts which are now of public notoriety in Paris. If the Figaro took notice of what I termed your dishonesty, it was justified thereby by the campaign of defamation and insult which you have inspired without provocation in the paper which you control. I hope you will succeed in getting out of the affair, and on your return I reserve to myself the right to tell you what I think of 'dishonesty' and your attitude with regard to a journal and a journalist who had never been anything but kind to you and your wife, while you have never shown anything but ingratitude."

Further correspondence of a similar nature followed, more threats were exchanged, but friends of both parties intervened and the hostile meeting was postponed after the arrival of Count Boni in Paris.

The De Rodays-Buffet Duel.

Paris, March 15.—The Tagblatt's Zurich correspondent telegraphs that the Swiss police are doing their best to stop the De Rodays-Buffet duel. M. De Rodays crossed the frontier at Langnau. He was recognized by detectives who were following him in the same train. The Hotel Bern Riveaux at Olmetz, where M. De Rodays is stopping, is surrounded by police.

French Torpedo Boat Lost.

Paris, March 15.—A French torpedo boat which had gone to meet a floating mine, carrying a load of bombs, sank in a few moments. The crew narrowly escaped in the boats.

MORGAN BILL PASSED.
Measure Repealing Bankrupt Privileges Nearly a Law.

Albany, March 15.—The Morgan bill repealing unconditionally the extraordinary powers of the Bankrupt Water company was passed in the senate by 49 affirmative votes. There were no votes in the negative, Republicans and Democrats voting together. The bill was passed out of its regular order to satisfy the public demand, though a wrangle in the senate over the paper copies preceded the final action. The bill was passed in the assembly Wednesday and now goes to the governor, who will sign it.

The general corporation tax bill of Senator Krum has been abandoned, and the assembly committee on taxation will report today a bill drawn on lines suggested by former Corporation Clerk Frank White. The new bill provides for a tax of one-eighth of 1 percent on the amount of capital employed by a corporation in this state during its first year of existence. The only exemptions are banks, savings banks, insurance companies and trust companies, all of whom are taxed specially, and laundry and manufacturing companies 50 percent of whose capital is invested in this state. It is believed the tax imposed will bring to the state about $1,000,000. The original bill which this is to take the place of would have netted the state $7,000,000.

Great objection has developed to the bill introduced in the senate by Senator Krum providing for an apportionment of the congressional districts of the state, and it is probable that a substitute bill will be introduced in the assembly which will meet many of the objections raised to the former measure. The objections mainly come from congressmen representing districts in the northern, central and western parts of the state, which are affected by the senate bill.

CASUALTIES IN CHINA.

More Deaths in Navy Than in Spanish War.

Washington, March 15.—Admiral Van Keppen, surgeon general of the navy, has prepared an interesting statement showing that there were more casualties in the United States navy during the recent trouble in China than there were during the entire Spanish-American war. As there is no exact time fixed for the opening of the hostilities in China, June 13 is adopted. The period of trouble in China runs from June 13 to October 13, the first regiment of United States Marines departing from China on the latter date. Within that period there were 129 casualties from all causes, of which 30 resulted in death.

The greatest number of casualties came from gunshot wounds. June 21 there were 34 casualties of this kind. The cases of heat stroke also ran high, with two deaths. 11 serious cases short of death and many minor ones. The entire number of gunshot wounds was 96. During the Spanish-American war the gunshot wounds not only were fewer in number, but decidedly less fatal. The percentage of deaths being 19 in the Spanish-American war and 26 in the China trouble. This was largely due to the fact that the Spaniards used the small Mauser projectiles, while the Chinese used large bore guns, shell and shrapnel. The marine guard in Pekin suffered the worst loss for out of 56 men eight were killed and nine wounded, making 30 per cent of casualties.

BRIEF NEWS NOTES.

Cloverport, Ky., has been burned, and 1,000 inhabitants are homeless. The loss is $500,000.

The Standard Oil company has paid a 20 cent dividend, amounting to $20,000,000, on all the stock.

Lieutenant Fred R. Payne, commanding the United States gunboat Pampanga, pursuant to instructions, has seized and destroyed in the department of the Visayas, Philippine Islands, 300 vessels of various sizes, mostly native craft constructed to assist the insurgents. But among those which have come to grief are a number of coasting vessels belonging to leading Manila firms.

The division of insular affairs of the war department has issued a statement of the commerce of Cuba for the first eight months of 1900 as compared with the same period of the preceding year. The total value of merchandise, gold and silver imported during that period of last year is set down at $48,308,407. For the same time in 1899 it was $17,440,771, an increase of $30,867,636, or nearly 2 per cent. The exports in 1900 were valued at $37,595,415 and in 1899 at $35,569,893.

The indictment places the total sum involved at $49,000.

It was at first thought that Blackford committed suicide, but when developments lead to the opinion that he shot himself accidentally.

EDWIN ARNOLD BLIND. KILLED BY BANK ROBBER

Overwhelmed With Domestic and Physical Trouble.

HIS SON JULIAN IN LONDON JAIL.

Letter Says Poet Goes on With His Work With Mental Powers Unimpaired—A Popular Orientalist—Married a Japanese Woman.

New York, March 15.—Troubles in a battalion have befallen the author of "The Light of Asia." Buddha's interpreter to the English speaking race, like that greater epic poet before him, is stricken with blindness. Deprived of the brightness of the visual ray, Sir Edwin Arnold has been compelled to relinquish much of the active literary work on which he has mainly spent the last 40 years on the editorial staff of the London Daily Telegraph. Domestic clouds have added to the burden of years and waning physical powers, as only recently a son, who was a solicitor, was arrested in the United States and found guilty on trial in London on a charge of embezzlement.

A letter just received in New York from the veteran author and journalist suggests with what courage he is facing these severe afflictions. To use his own words: "My condition would be a sad one without patience and resignation. I never despair and go on with my work thanking Heaven for my unimpaired mental powers."

Relieved from the exacting pressure of Fleet street, Sir Edwin Arnold, it may be hoped, may be able to give to the world some fresh picture of the glowing east like those on which already rest securely his fame and reputation.

His Fame as a Poet.

"How many editions his 'Light of Asia' has passed through it would now be hard to tell. The book was published in 1879 and at once attained such popularity that ten years ago there had been published more than 40 editions in England and some 80 acknowledged editions in America. It was the outcome of his early life in India where he passed several years in the stirring times of the mutiny.

His career at Oxford had been a brilliant one. Like Tennyson at Cambridge, he carried off at the sister university the blue ribbon for poetry, winning the Newdigate with a prize poem on the "Poet of Delphazar." There have been but few instances where the early promise was so well fulfilled in later life. After a brief spell as a schoolmaster in England he received an appointment as principal of the government Sanskrit college at Poona, in the Bombay presidency.

On his return to England after services which twice received the thanks of the governor in council he became attached to the editorial staff of The Daily Telegraph. It was on behalf of the proprietors of that journal that he arranged the first expedition of Mr. George Smith to Assyria as well as that of Sir Henry Stanley in search of Livingstone and the completion of his discoveries.

Marriage to Japanese Beauty.
Though Sir Edwin Arnold's later volumes of verse have not been so popular as his story of Buddha, his poetical translations from the Sanskrit epics and of the Persian poet Saadi brought him various distinctions from eastern rulers. He is a knight commander of the Indian empire. A younger brother, Sir Arthur Arnold, whose labors as a commissioner in the Lancashire cotton famine brought him into notice, has been prominent in London municipal government and gained another knighthood for his Kentish family.

Romance has followed Sir Edwin Arnold more or less throughout his career. A long stay in Japan some years ago led to his marriage with a Japanese lady as his third wife. She was a typical Japanese beauty, her name signifying "Jewel of the Dark River." To Sir Edwin Arnold's enthusiasm for the Land of the Chrysanthemum is due much of the cult of things Japanese which of late years have manifested themselves in an English house interior.

To Be a Philippine Judge.

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 15.—Professor E. C. Johnson, secretary of the law department of the University of Michigan, last night announced his intention of accepting the appointment to a supreme judgeship in the Philippines tendered him a few weeks ago by President McKinley. He will formally resign his position here.

Long Time Feud Ended.

London, Ky., March 15.—The factions in the Baker-Howard feud in Clay county have been pacified, including the Whites, the allies of the Howards, and the Garrards and the Phillips, the allies of the Baker clan. The feud dates back to 1844.

Cashier Ryan of Halifax, Pa., Shot In Scuffle.

BANDIT GRABBED $2,000 IN CASH.

Two Men Entered the Bank and Demanded All the Money—Both Were Caught—Murderer Says He Didn't Mean to Kill Ryan.

Harrisburg, March 15.—Charles W. Ryan, cashier of the Halifax national bank, was shot to death by Henry Rowe and Weston Kelper of Lykens yesterday in an attempt at a daring bank robbery.

The robbers were captured by a party of citizens soon after the crime and were brought to the Harrisburg jail, together with F. B. Straley of Lykens, who is suspected of being an accomplice. Rowe and Kelper drove to Halifax from Elizabethtown yesterday morning and, hitching their team on the outskirts of the town, entered the bank. Each had a revolver and demanded the attaches of the bank to throw up their hands and turn over the money.

One of them held in check Abraham Fostenbaugh, the president; Isaac Lyter, the teller, and ex-Representative Swartz of Duncannon, who was in the bank on private business. The other covered Cashier Ryan, and under the menace of the revolvers the cashier collected the cash in the drawers to the amount of $2,000 and placed it in a satchel the robbers had brought with them.

Rowe, with the cash stuffed satchel in his hand, backed out toward the door, and Kelper also moved toward the entrance of the bank. Just when it seemed that the robbers would succeed in getting away Cashier Ryan leaped forward in an attempt to knock up the revolver of the man with the money.

Several Shots Fired.

In the scuffle several shots were fired and Ryan fell to the floor, shot through the groin by a bullet from the pistol of Rowe. Mr. Fostenbaugh grabbed Rowe and after a short scuffle threw him to the floor. Kelper ran out to the street. The noise of the shots attracted J. F. Lyter, who has a store near the bank building. He ran out with his shotgun and pursued Kelper for one block and shot him in the back of the head, when the robber surrendered.

The wounded cashier was taken to his home after the capture of the desperadoes, where he died early last evening.

Rowe and Kelper are unmarried and formerly worked in the coal mines at Lykens. Rowe is 19 years old and has been considered a dangerous man. Kelper is 20 years old and was always looked upon as honest and harmless.

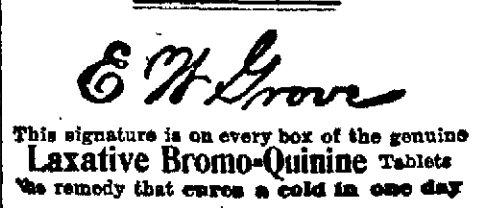

They were brought to Harrisburg. At the jail Kelper said that he did not shoot with the intention of killing anybody.

Nebraska Senatorial Contest.

Lincoln, Neb., March 15.—Six ballots were taken without result in the Republican senatorial caucus last night, and immediately following adjournment the members held a conference to discuss the advisability of so changing the rules as to permit of nominations by majority vote. The meeting continued until a late hour, but no decision was reached. Last night's meeting was the most exciting and largely attended for weeks. Significant changes were made in the vote, the most important gain being that of Edward Rosewater, who on the fifth ballot ran up to 23. The final ballot resulted: Thompson, 37; Rosewater, 22; McKeljohn, 20; Hinchaw, 8; Currie, 7; Harlan, 4; Cronuz, 3; Martin, 2; Klunkald, 2.

San Francisco, March 15.—The state supreme court has granted a new trial to Mrs. Cordelia Botkin, who was convicted of the murder of Mrs. J. P. Mrs. Botkin was tried on the charge of sending through the United States mail from this city to Dover, Del., a box of poisoned candy which caused the death of Mrs. Dunning, to whom it was addressed.

WENT OUT BETWEEN ACTS.

And When He Came Back He Got a Startling Surprise.

It did not take place in the city of Washington, because no man in Washington leaves a lady alone while he goes out between the acts at a theater—unless it be his wife, and of course that doesn't count.
But it did occur, and the site of its occurrence is not west of the Alleghenies, where, according to some eastern thinkers, all the peculiar occurrences occur.

The man in the case was perhaps 30, the girl 22, and the theater was one in which the melodrama was his home. The girl was pretty and there was that kind of a jaw hedging the lower part of her rosy cheeks that ought to have been a hint to the young man.

The young man was a very fair sample of the average chap who makes $1,200 to $1,600 a year.
Between them and the aisle sat a big man of 50 and his wife and two daughters, and the big man had a voice bigger than he was. When the curtain went down on the first act, there was a slight scarp between the couple, which ended in the young man not going out between the first and second acts, because the wait was short and he hadn't time to argue. The girl's cheeks were redder than before when the curtain went up and the scarp of her jaw was firmer.

At the next fall of the curtain there was a slight scarp again, which ended this time in the young man dragging himself out four people and leaving the girl to sit alone until he was ready to come back to her. Two minutes later the girl dragged herself after him over the same four people, but she stopped in the aisle long enough to say something to the big man with the two daughters. Then she disappeared. It was a long wait, and just as the curtain started up the young man hurried down the aisle and was about to drag himself over the four people when the big man called his attention to the vacancy which had occurred during his absence. The young man's jaw dropped, and he actually grayed in the face. The big man handed him a ring with a bright little diamond glistering in it.

"She gave me that and told me to give it to you," he said with a sneer in his tone as he looked over at his own girls,
"and she said it you ever came to her house again or spoke to her her father would thrash you as you deserved." The young man was paralyzed.

"And I want to say," added the big man, "that if the old man ain't able to do it he can call on me."

Then he let the young man go, and the way he went was caution to a living machine. It was a clear case of ships that pass in the night, but with just a little more interesting cargo than usual—

He Accepted the Apology.
A prominent New York lawyer is noted for his ready answers and skill in repartee.
When a young practitioner he appeared before a pompous old judge who took offense at a remark the lawyer made criticizing his decision.

"You do not instantly apologize for that remark, Mr. Blank," said the judge.
"I shall commit you for contempt of court."

"Upon reflection, your honor," instantly replied Mr. Blank, "I find that your honor was right and I was wrong, as you honor always is."

The judge looked dubious, but finally said, "but he would accept the apology."

His Iron Nerve.

his feelings."
"Think so?"
"Yes. I met him coming out of the county treasurer's office just after he had paid his taxes, and he laughed and clatted
as if nothing unusual had occurred."

NEXT MONDAY NIGHT.

Hoyt's A Bunch of Keys polished up to date will be presented at Music hall next Monday evening. A Bunch of Keys is one of the few farce comedies that has a plot, a very funny one at that. Jonathan Keys leaves by his will all his real estate, personal property,
hotel, etc., to one of his three nieces,
who, the first drummer that arrives at the hotel shall decide is the homeliest.
The three nieces, Teddy, Rose and May,
are very indignant, and refuse to accept the condition of the will. Littleton Snuggs, the lawyer, who reads the will, carefully conceals a codicil, and as in the condition of the will the hotel must be open one month after the reading, Snuggs decides that he is the proper person to do so until a decision is made. Gums, a brakeman, who knows nothing at all about a hotel, is engaged as an all around man to help Snuggs.
Teddy Keys and Dolly Dobbs also volunteer their service, the two other sisters with the aid of their friend, resolve to make things for Mr. Snuggs sick of hotel life, so they disguise themselves as guests and make things lively for him. Teddy discovers that it is her sister's friends who are the guests and makes up her mind to do some masquerading herself, so she cuts her hair off short and appears as a drummer. She succeeds in making it lively for them all when they succeed in getting a hold of the will and discover there is a codicil, which says that if the three nieces want to divide the property equally among themselves, they may do so which they do and no one has ever discovered which of the three Keys is the homeliest.

OBITUARY.

George W. Davis.

George W. Davis, a native of Lewis ton, Me., died at his home on Stark street Friday afternoon, aged sixty-seven years, eight months and twenty-four days. He is survived by a wife, four sons, Guy, of Boston, auditor of the Boston and Maine railroad, George of Lewiston, Arthur of Dover and Bert of this city and one daughter, Miss Bertha Davis, also of this city.

Thomas Wardwell.

Thomas, the eight-months old child of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Wardwell of Spinney's road, died Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Wardwell have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in their loss.

The Maddox Crowd.

"Stupendous union stations," says a correspondent of the Boston Transcript,
"are a great disadvantage to the subur-banites, who may make no use of the union feature and yet contribute 90 per cent, 1 suppose, of the traffic. Here is another point. The scattered stations make it possible for persons to select suburban homes on lines of railroads that tap the city near their place of business. This distributes the congestion of a great city. I have never understood why people do things to make the biggest crowds possible when there is nothing more disagreeable than being crowded."

"Theaters should distribute their time
of beginning over the widest range possible, so the cars would not be overcrowded to death one half hour and empty the rest of the time. Noon hours in business establishments should be distributed as to make hour-long crowds habitable. I need not elaborate. Our whole drift of modern life is toward such a degree of uniformity in everything as to crowd everything and leave great blank spaces of time and opportunity."

Crude Mathematics.

An illustration of the mathematical powers of the savage is given by the Rev.
A. E. Hunt in an account of the native arithmetical of Murray Islands. Native statements: "Notat" (one) and "neis" (two) are the only numerals, higher numbers having been described by combinations of these: "neis neis" for three, "neis neis" for four, etc., or by reference to one of the fingers, thumbs or other parts of the body. A total of 31 could be counted by the latter method. Beyond this all numbers were "many," as this was the limit reached in counting before the inroduction of English numerals, now in general use in the islands.

AN EXPOSITION BOOKLET.

Another Beautiful Production From Pan-American at Buffalo.

The Herald has received another one of the beautiful booklets from the Bureau of Publicity of the Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo, N. Y. It consists of 16 pages and a cover in light green. The unique feature of it is the miniature reproduction of the famous poster, "The Spirit of Niagara," which has had a most remarkable demand. The envelope in which the poster booklet is mailed also bears a production of this artistic work. The booklet is a popular picture book, the first page having an engraving of the magnificent Electric Tower, which is 331 feet high, and which will form the glorious centerpiece of the great exposition. On the same page is a miniature of one of the torch bearers which will adorn the wings of the Electric Tower, and beside it a picture of Niagara Falls. The second page shows a picture of the Electricity Building and five other small illustrations of the use of electricity.

The third page shows the splendid group of buildings erected by the Nation's Government and which will contain the Government exhibits, also five miniature illustrations, one of them showing the life saving station, where exhibitions will be given daily by a picked crew of ten men, during the Exposition.
The fourth page is devoted to the wonderful display of government ordnance;
the fifth to the Machinery and Transportation Building and four other illustrations of modern machines and vehicles. The center of the booklet shows a birdseye view of the Exposition,
and gives one some idea of the great extent of the enterprise upon which about $10,000,000 is being expended.

BASKET BALL NOTES.

The New Hampshire college team played a fast clean game and were much pleased with their treatment.

The Lowell Y. M. C. A. defeated the Portland basket ball team on Thursday
by a score of twenty-nine to seven.

Woods brothers have received a challenge from the strong Lowell Y. M. C.
A., and probably will give them a date
before the season closes.

The game of basket ball between the Watamans and the Delapoons, which was to have been played in the town hall at York on Friday evening, has been postponed until Monday evening,
the 25th inst.

All games in the future will be in fifteen minute instead of twenty minute halves, thus giving the three games in one and one-half hours, instead of two hours, so as not to keep the spectators
at the hall so long.

The Wolfeboro team has challenged
the Woods brothers, for a game next Thursday evening, for the state championship. They have lost only one game this season and made thirty one points against the Rochester Y. M. C. A., while the Woods boys only made eleven. The Wolfeboro team is a fast one and will make its opponents hustle to keep up their record of not having a defeat.

NAVAL MATTERS.

The Hartford and Lancaster have arrived at Boston, to take part in the Evacuation Day exercises.

Newburyport is delighted with the fact that the North Atlantic squadron has been ordered there for next summer
during the celebration of the anniversary of the city.

Rear Admiral Stephen B. Lucas (retired) has been detached from his duties as member of the naval board on awards and ordered to proceed home.

As an evidence of their appreciation of his kindness and considerate treatment of them during his eight years as chief of the construction bureau, the attaches of the bureau on Thursday evening presented a handsome loving cup to their late chief, Rear Admiral Richborn.

The sheathing of battle-ships and armored cruisers has been declared by the board of bureau chiefs and Secretary Long to be undesirable and not representative of the highest type of naval construction, and no more of it will be done. Thus a policy advocated by former chief constructor Richborn during the greater part of his career in the bureau as its chief is created.

REQUISITION RETURNED.

Adjutant General Ayling has received his requisition for Springfield magazine rifles, returned from the war department and endorsed over the signature of A. B. Buntington, brigadier general and chief of ordnance, with words to the effect that under present conditions no magazine rifles can be issued to any state militia.

Good News for the Sick

NO DRUGS OR POISONS USED.
ELECTRICITY

It will tone up your whole system, give you pure blood and healthful activity and will give you snap, vigor and vitality so essential to happiness. So much has been printed in one way or another concerning electrical treatment of human ills that most people are informed in a general way of the existence of such treatment, but perhaps few really know the actual service rendered and the manner in which it is performed at the hands of a skilled specialist.

It has been conclusively proven that localized troubles of an inflammatory or congested nature, disorders of the nervous, digestive and secretory systems, and other functional derangements, receive the most prompt and positive benefit from electricity if administered understandingly.

TREATING RHEUMATISM AND IMPAIRED CIRCULATION.

Scientific, all forms of neuralgia, rheumatism of joints and muscles, lumbago, paralysis, spine disease and similar complaints are especially amenable to electric treatment. They have been cured by skilled application of electricity after every other known means had been exhausted in vain.

Nervous prostration, brain fog, weakness of the circulatory system, hysteria, insomnia and similar troubles, all having their origin in one common cause, experience immediate relief from electrical currents. They are ailments that medicine alone cannot reach.

The painless reduction of abnormal growth, such as fibroid and glandular tumors, goitre, etc., can be performed by electrical methods where formerly the painful, unsatisfactory, uncertain and dangerous remedy was the surgeon's knife.
Prof. Caldwell of New York, who is spending several months in Portsmouth has brought from the Caldwell Sanitarium of N. Y., all the wonderful electrical instruments by which disease is cured. His office at 4 Islington street is proving a pool of Sileas where the discouraged sick find health in a truly marvelous manner. Prof. Caldwell cures where others have failed. His charges for treatment at the present time are very small. Consultation is free. This is your opportunity to be cured. No matter what your condition, go straight to Prof. Caldwell's office at 4 Islington street, where every courtesy will be extended, and if a cure is possible you may be as sure of it as of the sun rising.

Prof. Caldwell gives another free X-Ray demonstration Monday evening at his office at 8 o'clock. Those having any chronic trouble should not fail to attend.

SATURDAY, MARCH 16, 1901.

Mr. Cleveland shows that he knows that he has been called stubborn, but he does not deny it.

Sunday golf in Massachusetts would of course mean that there would be more Sunday profanity as well.

Mr. Carnegie says he always wanted to be a newspaper man. There are a lot of newspaper men who always wanted to be Carnegies.

It seems that the Emperor William does not know the difference between a junk of pig iron and a bunch of violets. He probably wouldn't recognize the kick of a mule until several days after.

The legislature of New Mexico has under consideration a bill to make the playing of football a misdemeanor, punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both. That looks more like Kansas legislation than anything else.

The Boston Globe notes the fact that the memory of Queen Victoria was promptly honored by Bostonians in the display of flags at half mast and that there has been noticeable lack of respect to the memory of ex-President Harrison by such form. It is feared that what is true of Boston is also true of other places. Too true.

The Massachusetts State Board of Arbitration reluctantly admits that its services are of small usefulness to employers and employees. Only 11 per cent. of the cases that it has investigated were taken to the board on the joint petition of both parties to the dispute. It did more business in cases brought before it on the petition of one side only, namely, 26 per cent. The remaining cases which it looked into, comprising 63 per cent. of the whole number, were cases which it examined of its own accord, its investigation not having been asked for by either side, and its action presumably as undesirable interference. But it was for just such interference that a board of arbitration is intended and it is to the credit of the Massachusetts board that it interested itself in so large a percentage of cases as it did.

Here is some Pennsylvania justice and law. A Wilkesbarre judge, who fortunately is a good scrapper, got down from his bench, stripped off his coat and gave a wife beater a dose that ought to be administered in many such cases. The judge was expressing his opinion of such a man as was before him, when the fellow, whose name is Pesontini, called the judge a name. Already angered by the wife's pitiful story, this was too much for the judge, and with a forcible exclamation, he jumped from his bench threw his coat in a corner, and pushing aside his constables, went for the prisoner in Terry McGovern's best style. The prisoner was no easy mark at that, and for a couple of minutes the affair was exceedingly lively. The squire's rage gave him extra strength, and a couple of hard punches on Pesontini's nose took some of the fight out of him. From that moment the game was in the squire's hands, and he gave the fellow a trouncing that he will remember. Finally Pesontini dropped on the floor and cried, "Enough!" whereupon the squire sent him to jail on the charges of wife beating, threats to kill and contempt of court. The squire was somewhat winded after his exertions, but managed to pronounce sentence in a judicial manner. The man's wife declared it did her heart good to see her husband get a dose of his own medicine.

"I shall never quit fighting," said De Wet, "until I get that for which we are fighting, or my force is reduced to less than 200 men." The developments of the last fortnight in South Africa preise to eliminate nearly every other factor of resistance in the desperate struggle against the British Empire, except the personality of the grim commander who uttered those words last summer, says the New York Mail and Express. With only four hundred men behind him, and with amnesty expressly withheld from him, he is reported as having escaped northward from his tortuous invasion of Cape Colony and it is supposed that he is heading for Koonstad—his home. Every circumstance seems to throw into bolder relief this stern republican figure. His discomfiture south of the Orange River, his flight, his summary treatment of the peace envoys, the threats of the British, his alleged flogging of weak-hearted followers, his reputed declaration that the war was now one of revenge and would be carried on by him in that spirit, all tell their own story that the iron has entered into a soul that is incapable of submission. While such a leader is in the field, however insignificant his force, no British troops will be withdrawn and the war will not be over.

She says Electric Bitters are splendid for female troubles; that they are a grand tonic and invigorator for weak, run down women. No other medicine can take its place in our family." Try them. TO CLOSE APRIL 2.

Two Weeks and Two Days More in Which to Gather Votes in Kittery Contest.

The Kittery contest for the Herald's gold watch and chain and bicycle will close two weeks from next Tuesday, April 2. The fact that there have been but a comparatively few votes sent in for the past few weeks makes it evident that there are thousands stored away in the town for the close of the contest. The voting today has been in small amounts. But the young folks over in Kittery are working harder than ever in the contest and the totals at the end will be a surprise.

The list at noon today stood as follows:

TO GRAMMAR TEACHERS.

Supt. H. C. Morrison of Portsmouth Lectured Friday Night.

Forty members of the Grammar Teachers' association assembled in the hall of the Manchester High school Friday evening and listened to a lecture on "Discipline and Self-Government," given by H. C. Morrison, superintendent of the schools of this city. The speaker said that he believed construction, instead of destruction, to be the controlling force in the discipline of a school, and that it should not be given in the spirit of retribution. He illustrated the development of self government in the public schools by the basis of national self-government. He stated that the controlling force in any kind of a government was in the will of the people. He named as three of the principal points in discipline, manual training, activity and self-control. Activity on the play ground has given great returns as a discipline agent. To illustrate this he mentioned the story of Wellington, who said, when passing Eaton play-ground, where he had engaged in many games with his playmates that, had it not been for his training in sizing up his opponents in the game, which he indulged in he would never have won the battle of Waterloo.

The lecture was listened to with great attention and the teachers were unanimous in their opinion that the lecture had been very instructive, as well as entertaining. Much interest has been manifested in the association since its inception, and all of the members take a lively interest in its work. The next meeting will be held on May 6, when the annual election of officers will take place. The committee in charge of last evening's lecture was F. L. V. Spaulding, Miss Mary A. Buzzell, Miss Ellen E. McKean, John Gault and Edgar D. Cass.

TO RECEIVE PRIZE MONEY.

Men Who Smashed Spanish Fleets to be Paid Soon.

Several thousand dollars bounty money due Rear Admiral Sampson for his services in the Spanish war will be paid him in a few days, and checks for large sums will be issued at the same time to all officers and men of his command entitled to payment. The admiral's allowance will exceed that of Admiral Dewey's for smashing and capturing Spanish warships in Manila bay. Under the decision of the court of claims Admiral Sampson should receive $8385 for his part in the Santiago fight, but in addition he will get two separate annuities of about $1700 each for the Manila fight, about $1000 for the action in Nipa bay and a smaller sum for other actions in which ships of his fleet took part. Altogether he will receive nearly $12,000. About half a million dollars will be divided as bounty among officers and men taking part in the Spanish war, exclusive of the large sums that the prize courts may also allow. The prize money will probably be much larger in amount than the bounty payments.

LIFE GUARDS.

The Life Guards are two regiments of cavalry forming part of the British household troops. They are gallant soldiers, and every loyal British heart is proud of them. Not only the Queen's household, but yours, ours, everybody's should have its life guards. The need of them is especially great when the greatest foes of life, diseases, find allies in the very elements, as cold, influenza, catarrh, the grip and pneumonia do in the stormy month of March. The best way that we know of to guard against these diseases is to strengthen the system with Hood's Sarsaparilla—the greatest of all life guards. It removes the conditions in which these diseases make their most successful attack, gives vigor and tone to all the vital organs and functions, and imparts a special warmth to the blood. Remember the weaker the system the greater the exposure to disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the system strong.

The conditions of the contest are as follows, a most liberal offer:

The Portsmouth Herald agrees to send three residents of Portsmouth, who are either members of the Portsmouth fire department, a social club or of some secret society, to the Pan-American exposition, pay all their expenses from the time they leave, until they return, including a week in Buffalo, with board and lodging and admission to the exposition daily.

This offer beats anything ever announced by any newspaper in New England, and is so far above the expense and interest of a trip to the national inauguration that it cannot be mentioned in the same class.

The contest will not be restricted to gentlemen but will be open to any lady who is a member of the various secret societies or auxiliary societies in Portsmouth.

The trip will include stop over privileges en route and returning and first class accommodations will be provided. In order that every detail of the grand tour may be properly looked after, the publishers will either send an agent in advance or with the party to make arrangements.

Everybody knows that the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo is to be grander and greater in every way than the World's fair and the visit will be the event of a lifetime.

The contest opened on Monday, March 4, when the first ballot appeared and which will appear daily until June 1, next, the last ballot to appear on the latter date, and the three persons having the greatest number of votes will have the grand privilege that has been offered. The last ballots must be received at the Herald office by 7.30 p. m., on Wednesday June 5, and the results of the contest will be announced at the earliest possible date.

This is an opportunity never before equalled in this section of the country and well worth the attention of every one eligible for such a trip. Vote early and vote often. Elect yourself.

A SOCIAL EVENING.

The members of Company B held an informal sociable and smoke talk in the armory on Court street Friday evening, which proved a very enjoyable affair. Carrier, the caterer, set out a fine lunch to which the boys did ample justice. It is the intention of holding these affairs once a month for members and those anticipating joining the company.

The Herald has all the latest news.

The Boy's Biographical club will meet at the Christian parsonage at seven o'clock on Monday evening. Mr. Hall hopes to see every member of the club present.

Mr. Walter E. Fernald of Ferry lane has gone to New London, Conn., to work in Charles R. Hanson's ship yard. About a dozen of our young men are now employed there.

The High school closed the winter term last evening. The usual vacation is about three weeks. Principal Stewart will remain in town until after the town election, when he will go to his home in Lewiston for a visit.

The republicans of Kittery will meet in caucus at Wentworth hall on Tuesday evening, March 19, at 7.30 o'clock for the purpose of nominating town officers to be supported at the town election on Monday, March 25. The call is signed by E. L. Chaney, chairman, and O. Sumner Paul, secretary.

Renewal's naval band of Portsmouth will furnish music for the occasion.

The services at the Second Christian church on Sunday will be as follows: In the morning, the pastor, the Rev. E. C. Hall will deliver his fourth sermon on the life of Christ; under the subject, "Christ as Seen in Miracle and Parable." The evening sermon will be: "Christian Citizenship and Christian Patriotism," with special reference to the life of ex-President Harrison. Mr. Hall hopes that many of the young men will attend this service, for the life of Mr. Harrison is one that can be studied with a great deal of profit.

The members of Constitution lodge, No. 88, K. of P., have reason to feel proud. It seems that a prize has been offered by the grand lodge of the state for the best work done by the degree teams of the several lodges. Two teams, considered to be the best in the state, have been selected to exemplify the work before a convention to be held at city hall, Portland, April 18, 1901. This lodge is one of the two selected from one hundred and thirty lodges throughout the state of Maine. The local Knights are much pleased with their selection for competition for the prize and our whole community takes pleasure in congratulating them. Nearly all the lodge members expect to accompany their team on its trip to Portland. The best wishes of the public go with them.

$15 BUY 100 SHARES
$25 BUY 170 SHARES
$50 BUY 350 SHARES
$100 BUY 700 SHARES

We are so confident that stock will go up at par that we guarantee that after twelve months from date you cannot buy a share of this stock from the Copper Cliff Mining Co. for less than its par value, $1 per share.

Copper shares have made investors many fortunes the last year. In 1899 a servant in the family of Prof. Agassiz asked him to invest $200 for him. He invested it in 50 shares of copper stocks. The compound interest and dividends, added to the present market value, amounted to $500,000. Grasp this opportunity and do likewise. You cannot lose. Get rich by a few shares before they advance. Send money by draft, express, registered letter or by office order for as many shares as you wish to.

Glad, Anyhow.

"I beg your pardon. I thought this was Mr. Chucksley."

"Then I am glad to find that when I thought I was mistaken I was mistaken in thinking I was mistaken."

"I say when I thought I was mistaken I was mistaken in thinking I was mistaken. I was mistaken when I wasn't mistaken. I was glad to find I was mistaken when I thought I was mistaken, because I wasn't mistaken—or, rather, I was mistaken when I thought I was mistaken, and so I couldn't have been mistaken—well, at any rate, I'm glad. Looks as if we were going to have some fun, doesn't it?"—Chicago Tribune.

Porto Ricans Commit Suicide.

San Juan, Porto Rico, March 15.—Two members of the Porto Rican regiment, Beltran and Arroyo, committed suicide yesterday. Beltran had been reprimanded by an officer for untidiness and ordered to do kitchen duty. He went to quarters and blew off the top of his head with his rifle. While the body of Beltran was being buried, Arroyo, who was a close friend of Beltran, killed himself in the same fashion. There have been seven suicides by the native regiment during the last six months. Yesterday Cayetano, an apprentice of the United States training ship Albatross, was accidentally killed while practicing with a revolver.

A Lawyer's Sharp Tongue.

S. Teackle Wallis, for many years the leader of the Maryland bar, was noted for his wit and sharp tongue. On one occasion it was remarked to him that a certain law firm, suspected of not being altogether reputable, had a fine practice. "Yes," said Wallis, "their practice is better than their practices."

Of a well known judge whose opinions were generally characterized by a great vacillation and indecision of mind he once said, "Judge B. is certain of only one thing in a case and that is that there is a doubt in it."

BRITISH JACK TARS.

FAMOUS MUTINIES IN WHICH THEY HAVE FIGURED.

The Outbreak That Led to the Settlement of Pitcairn Island—Upstairs That Brought Death to the Ringleaders—A Fearful Flogging.

For reasons which will at once suggest themselves to every intelligent reader, mutinies in the navy have almost invariably been more serious and determined affairs than similar outbreaks happening in the army.

Almost everybody has heard of the mutiny at the Nore, which blocked up the trade of the Thames from May 27 until June 13, 1797, and left practically the whole of our southern seaboard to the mercy of an alien foe. This was undoubtedly the most serious outbreak that has ever taken place in our own, or for that matter, in any other navy. The mutineers seized their officers, trained the forward guns aft, hoisted the red flag on the admiral's ship, double shot the broadside cannons and told off men with lighted matches at every porthole. At the same time, however, discipline was strictly enforced.

Eventually, of course, the mutiny was suppressed, and the ringleader, Parker, suffered death by hanging with 22 of his companions. No one can, of course, offer any excuse for the violent conduct of those misguided men. Nevertheless it is impossible to deny that they had a genuine grievance; that repeated petitions for redress had been contemptuously ignored; and that from the date of their execution the status and treatment of Jack Tar underwent a marked change for the better.

In 1801 the mutiny of the Bantey bay squadron gave rise to the widest apprehension. The Temeraire led the outbreak; the men threatening unless their demands were complied with to fire the ship and murder their officers. Other vessels joined in, notably the Formidable, Majestic and Vengeance. Luckily the marines remained loyal, and by them chiefly the mutiny was suppressed. Eleven men only were executed for this affair, but the floggings inflicted on the remainder were in most cases of such shocking severity that one would have thought death itself would have been far preferable.

Perhaps the best known and most dramatic of single ship mutinies were those which broke out on the Bounty in 1789 and in the Danae frigate in 1800. The facts connected with the first named incident are almost too well known to bear repetition. Suffice it to say that the men, driven to madness by a harsh and tyrannical commander, mutinied near Tahiti in the southern Pacific ocean, set the officers adrift in an open boat and carried the ship to Pitcairn island, a lonely, uninhabited spot lying about midway between Australia and South America. Here their descendants remain until this very day.

The mutiny of the Danae's crew took place early in March, the men rising in response to a previously concerted signal and murdering their officers, after which the crew sailed the frigate into Brest harbor and handed her over to the French authorities. It is some satisfaction to know that five of the mutineers were taken prisoners while fighting against us soon afterward and promptly hanged.

A precisely similar attempt was made in the same year to seize the Hamilton, with the avowed intention of handing her over to France. Happily the scheme was frustrated, but the commander of the ship, one Pigot, was brutally murdered. He descended into the fo'c'stle to reason with the malcontents and was set upon and literally hacked to pieces, the fragments of the carcass being afterward thrust through one of the portholes. For participation in this diabolical crime two men named respectively James Allen and John Watson, were afterward hanged at Portsmouth.

The rising on board the London in May, 1797, was really a sequel to the bloodless mutiny which broke out at Spithead earlier in the same year. The London was Admiral Colpoys' flagship and was being approached by a boat in which were some unarmed men from the other ships of the fleet bearing a petition. The admiral forbade them to approach, and on their persisting he ordered a guard of marines to fire upon them. The volleying of the muskets was a signal for an immediate uprising on the part of the London's crew. The marines were overpowered and disarmed, Colpoys was seized and roughly handled, and the other officers were sent on shore.

In this case, as in almost others, the redcoats remained loyal. It was not until the more alarming news of a serious mutiny was discovered, a little later on, to have been hatched among the marines of the Plymouth squadron. Luckily on the morning of the very day the plot was to have been put into execution one of the mutineers turned traitor, with the result that the authorities were on their guard and the rising was suppressed almost ere it had begun.

On the following morning at daylight three of the Ringleaders—Lee, Coffy and Branning—were shot. Another, a youth of 15 named McGinnis, received the atrocious sentence of 1,000 lashes with cut o' nine tails, the punishment to be inflicted in two installments of 500 lashes each, cats to be "pickled," and four to be "counted slowly" after each stroke.

It is seldom that one hears of a naval mutiny in which the signal for revolt has come not from the men, but from the officers. Yet something very like this happened in August, 1792, when stanch old Admiral Bonbow put out from Jamaica to fight the French fleet under Du Casso. The British squadron consisted of seven ships of from 50 to 70 guns, and Bonbow felt sure of victory until he observed with dismay that five of his captains were deliberately disobeying his orders. They, in fact, declined to cap on sail, and were soon huddled down on the horizon. Nevertheless Bonbow attacked with his own ship and the little Ruler, but he had to retire in the end, with more than half his men hors de combat, and he himself mortally wounded by a chain shot which had shattered his right leg.

The last scene of this strange and tragic episode—so creditable to Bonbow, so disgraceful to most of the others concerned—took place on the quarter deck of his majesty's ship Bristol, in Plymouth sound, on the early morning of April 16, 1793, when Captain Kirby of the Delaware and Captain Wado of the Greenwich, the two officers who were proved to have been the ringleaders of the mutiny, were shot after trial by court martial.—London Times.

The one thing that strikes the traveler about Irish scenery is the gray tones of its coloring; the rocks, the hills, the houses, the soil, the sky, are all painted in gray, and it scarcely looks its best not in the full glare of sunlight.

PRINTERS' ODD TOOLS.

Some Appliances Which Our Great Grandfathers Used.

Once in awhile one hears a reference to the sheepskin faking balls with which our great-grandfathers in the printing trade used to ink their forms. This is about the only odd tool of the trade now in disuse with which the printers of today are familiar. There are others which were more or less used at various times that have dropped out and been forgotten. A couple of these have come to light through an old catalogue that has fallen into the writer's hands. One was a short wooden galley, open at one side and having clamps below, by means of which it might be attached to the boxes of the upper case. Thus supported it was three or four inches above the surface of the boxes, leaving room for the compositor to reach the type without disturbing the galley. This form of galley was probably brought into use about the time that printers discovered it to be a nuisance to carry the galley on the cap case. The old plan was to lay the caps and small caps in the four upper rows of the cap case and then to rest the galley across the three lower rows, into which there was seldom necessity for the compositor's hand to travel. While the propped up galley was undoubtedly better than the galley laid across the cap case, the plan of placing the galley on a disused case or on a bank rendered it useless.

A universal stereotype block was at one time in use, being made with grooves that ran slantingly, or at an angle of about 45 degrees to the base and side of the block. The block was clamped in the grooves and was readily brought to any position. Such a block answered very well on hand presses, but when steam cylinder presses came into use it proved too unreliable, allowing the pages to slip, and so it was discarded.

The sheepskin is a tool unknown in many modern presses, and in another generation we may expect that the shooting stick will also have disappeared. Other tools, though altered and improved in various ways, seem mostly to hold their own in spite of the many additions being made to the list.—Printer and Bookmaker.

INDIAN FIRE WALKERS.

The Practice Still Exists in Parts of the East.

It may interest students of folklore to learn that there was a fire walking ceremony at Benares the other day, which has given rise to a good deal of discussion in the Indian Press. There seems to be no doubt as to the honesty and success of the performance, but as a correspondent points out, fire walking is much more commonly practiced than is supposed. He himself witnessed the ceremony on the first of August 1883 and 1885 in Mauritius, where he believes they are of annual occurrence. The performers were natives from Malabar. The method was exactly as described by Mr. Laing.

According to this eyewitness, a priest led off, working himself into a state of frenzy and then walking a distance of about 30 feet over live embers, but "in such a manner that neither foot was long in contact with them." Several others on one occasion two little boys—followed the priest's example and were afterward dogged to drive away sins that had not succumbed to the fire walking—which seems hard. No amount of flogging did the priest any good. He had to be dipped in the sea to bring him to his senses.

The correspondent holds by the natural explanation of the "phenomenon." He carefully examined the men and found that they were not burned, but were as hard as iron owing to a lifelong exposure without coats. "That is all very well, but the hardest foot would surely be scorched at the end of some 15 steps over a floor of fire. And the fire walkers don't hurry."

Hannah More's Wedding Day.

The celebrity of Hannah More, the English writer, which gave her so much time to benevolent powers, her mind to the interests of humanity, has always been a subject of surprise and discussion. The writer relates this circumstance: "She was early engaged to be married to a gentleman of family and fortune. The wedding day was fixed. The bride and her party moved off freely to the church where the ceremony was to be performed, only to find that the lover was not there. The bidden guests, thought the attendants. They miscalculated; he came not at all. A horseman rode up to the church and handed a letter to Miss More. With melancholy apologies the B. itless swain told her that he could not take the responsibility of making her his bride. At the same time he offered any pecuniary remuneration in his power.

"Whether the lady fainting or only pouting is not mentioned, but her relatives followed the business up with such promptness and spirit that the 'dastard in love' made a settlement upon the slighted lady for 25000 year for life."

Homer and Jewish Rites.

A passage in Pope's "Iliad" ("Chandos Classics") has stirred an intellectual curiosity and proves that one touch of ritual makes the antique world kin. The ancient Jews were great upon "washing of hands," with the ceremonial laws of which our ancestors of the Talmud largely backed itself. "This 'washing of hands' regarded with such veneration by the rabbins that they crystallized its imperativeness by stamping it with a seal as of Mosaic sanctity. Living in such an atmosphere and trained from childhood to cherish this specific rite as indigenous in Judaism, I felt some amazement when I read page 165 of above:

New pray to Jove what Greece demands; Pray in deep silence and with purest hands; Backley adds a note which, displays a wide outlook: "This is one of the most ancient superstitions respecting prayer, and one founded as much in nature as in tradition."—Notes and Queries.

Killed by a Poem.

An author, having waited in vain for a check for an accepted poem, wrote the editor mildly inquiring about it. The editor replied:

DEAR SIR:—The magazine is dead. It could not stand everything. It passed peacefully away, with your poem on the front page. The sheriff, who is a man of some literary ability, now writes to the publisher: "The book is dead, but we hope to get damages out of you."—Atlanta Constitution.

SAVED BY RARE LUCK.

STRANGE ADVENTURES AND ESCAPES OF A MANUSCRIPT.

The Checkered History of a Page of Poe's "The Murders of the Rue Morgue"—Now Carefully Preserved in the Drexel Institute.

In a covered glass case in the library room of the Drexel Institute in Philadelphia are a number of rare literary treasures. In the north end of the case, written in a small hand, but so firm and legible as to look almost like copperplate, is a manuscript that attracts general attention. It's a page from Edgar Allan Poe's weird story of "The Murders of the Rue Morgue," a story which caused a sensation when it was first published, half a century or more ago, and which was not, as many uninformed readers believe, a product of Poe's wonderfully active imagination, but founded on its main incident upon the mysterious murder of Marie Rogot, the New York cigarette girl, which puzzled the best police talent of the country and furnished a problem in the solution of which Poe's marvelous faculty of deductive analysis evolved the queer story that has thrilled and baffled tens of thousands of readers through the succeeding years.

The manuscript of the strangely thrilling tale "The Murders of the Rue Morgue," was for many years the property of the late J. M. Johnston, a well known newspaper man of Lancaster, Pa., who died about ten years ago. He disposed of the precious pages of Poe some years previous. The manuscript came into his possession about the spring of 1842. At that time he was an apprentice in the office of Barrett & Thrasher, a printer in the city of Philadelphia, at 33 Carter's alley. Philadelphia. Mr. Johnston believed that it was in the pages of Graham's Magazine, printed by the firm named, that the story of "The Murders of the Rue Morgue" first appeared, while the revised proof was read in the Saturday Evening Post office, which was then located on Chestnut street, above Third. He had himself stuck the type for a part of the since famous story.

After the proof had been read the manuscript found its way into the waste basket, along with a bunch of other apparently unimportant copy. But the young printer boy, who had developed a high admiration for the literary genius of the author, a respect which he maintained throughout the succeeding years of his life, picked the copy out of the receptacle into which it had been ignominiously cast and asked and obtained leave to keep it. He took it to his home, and it was put away so carefully that the owner lost sight of it for many years.

In 1848 Mr. Johnston's father, Dr. William Johnston removed to York county, subsequently to Maryland and thence into Virginia, carrying with him on these various pilgrimages the pages of Poe. Neither the elder Johnston nor his son knew that the manuscript was snugly stowed away in the leaves of a large book in the library—in fact it had been neglected so long that it was actually forgotten altogether. Deciding, after a residence of some years in the south, to return to Pennsylvania, Dr. Johnston made a sale of his personal effects, and among a lot of books offered at the auction was found this much traveled Poe manuscript. It was at once recognized, rescued from oblivion and forwarded to Mr. Johnston, who had continued his residence in Philadelphia until 1857, removing hence to Lancaster where he regained possession of the long neglected pages, none the worse for their peripatetic.

Mr. Johnston started business as a daguerreotypist at Lancaster, being the first man to permanently establish the occupation of picture taking in that ancient town. "Twice his gallery took fire, and on one of these occasions of the daguerreotypes (March 3, 1859) were destroyed. Pictures, precious apparatus, were consumed, but the Poe manuscript, folded within the leaves of an old music book, escaped the wreck.

About 1870 a grocery store occupying the first floor of the building in which the daguerreotypy rooms were located, took fire and burned furiously. The flames did not reach the gallery, but the smoke did, and the flames droned everything with water destroying books, papers and other property, but by good good fortune the manuscript again escaped injury beyond a slight discoloration.

When the event broke out Mr. Johnston resided and led a company of volunteers through to the campaign. On his return to a place of peace he found the Poe manuscript within the pages of the music book he had left.

In 1880 Mr. Johnston's house, the scene of the destruction of his daguerreotypes and of historic interest to him, which years ago displayed the daguerreotypes of trade, though the daguerreotypes still stands, though it is to serve as a place of a large mercantile store.

Returning from the hotel in Lancaster to his wife's chamber, in which he was remaining to nurse his life, he had there assigned a great quantity of the ash heap, the old music book's previous contents had been almost all, sharing the fate of a number of supposed worthless articles.

The book was seen sitting on a shelf by a neighbor, the late A. Watkins, who, thinking it had been a very overlook, picked it out of its undisturbed and undeserved place in the owner's hands. When the book turned over its leaves, he again discovered its astonishing escape from the track of the flames, and long missed manuscript which he had 30 years before he had carried away a pride from the Philadelphia printing office.

Resolved that these really valuable and historic pages should no longer be exposed to the risks of which they had successfully survived so many, he had them secured for permanent preservation, to which precaution is probably due the fact that thousands have the privilege of beholding the actual handwriting of one who has been aptly described as "the buried genius of romance," and that, too, in a masterpiece that will ever hold a front rank in the class of literature of which it is a shining example.

The late George W. Childs secured the Poe manuscript in 1882, the transfer of the pages being attended by interesting correspondence between the great publisher and Mr. Johnston. It became one of the cherished treasures of Mr. Childs' library and was regarded as a chef d'oeuvre of that splendid collection of works of the kind which now grace the Drexel Institute library.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

IN THE LEGISLATURE

Efforts of the Lawmakers From This Section of the State.

Things were somewhat lively in the room of the committee on railroad Friday morning for a short time, Judge Samuel W. Emery of Portsmouth and Mayor Harry G. Sargent of Concord appearing as attorneys for the Lovell interests in the Seaboard Leach railroad controversy. Mr. Emery presented a new draft of a bill which contained all the concessions his clients would make in the matter and demanded that the report be made to the house today. He charged that the bill for the charter of the railroad had been held there in committee for six weeks after the hearing had been held in the interests of a man who had never built a mile of railroad in this state, as against a man who had spent thousands of dollars here. He characterized this as a shameful treatment. He further charged that the bill had been purposely held for the purpose of defeat in preventing the house from reaching it. He regretted that he had no carried out his purpose four weeks ago of having a resolution put through the house demanding its recall from the committee.

Among the new measures introduced Friday there is one that is likely to provoke discussion and that is the proposition to put the jails under the management of the county commissioners, the receipts above all necessary expenditures to be turned into the county treasury. They are now managed by the sheriff.

Reports of committees in the house incorporated—An act to incorporate the Durham Water Works company. Favorably with amendments. Amendments adopted. To be printed.

A feature of the day was the generous consideration accorded bills looking to the improvement of highways. They demonstrated that this general court is decidedly in favor of good roads. Many bills carrying appropriations of a few hundred each were reported favorably and forwarded, and several big propositions in this line were approved. One of these proposes the continuance of the state highway from Manchester to Concord. It carries no appropriation, but simply provides for its building. The appropriation of $20,000 for a state highway from the Massachusetts line in Nashua to Prescott bridge in Manchester was recommended by the committee, and a like sum was favored for the completion of the seacoast boulevard from the Bay State line to Fort Point in New castle.
